

What you need to know about Arthroscopy

We all know the signs – slow to get up in the morning, a limp or an old injury. They can all be signs of joint trouble. New technology and techniques have come together in the field of arthroscopy to help diagnose and treat many common afflictions. Very small endoscopes are combined with high power light sources and camera systems to allow joints to be examined in amazing detail.

Hip

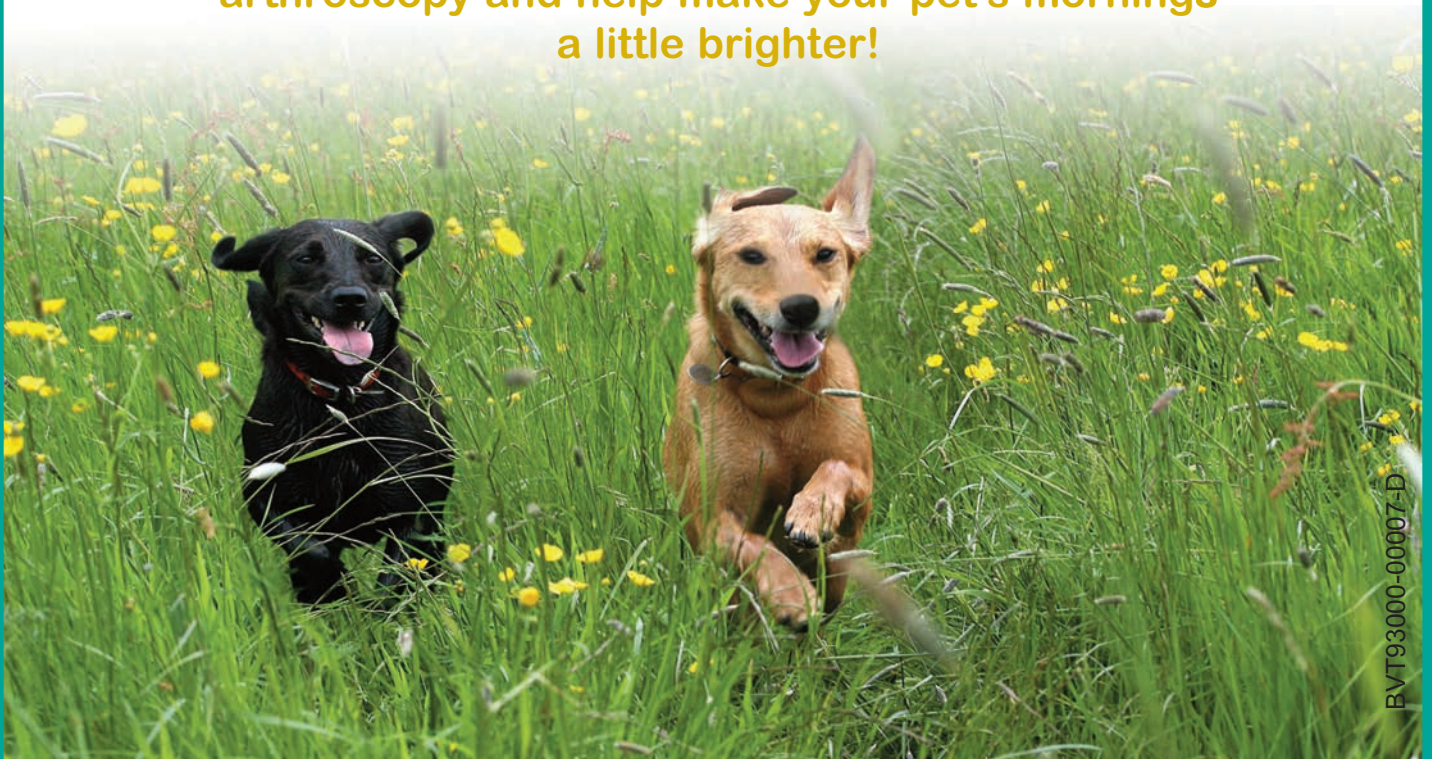

Shoulder

Elbow

This leads to more accurate diagnoses, better treatment, and faster recovery. Ask your veterinarian about arthroscopy and help make your pet's mornings a little brighter!
